REGISTRERA

Now we are back at the login screen provide the info you just registered with and feel free to press the “Automatisk inloggning” checkbox in order to auto-login.

From the landing screen we have a few options, since you just registered you probably don't have any active private chats, this limits your options to logging out using the dropdown-menu in the top-right. Other options include viewing and maybe editing your profile using the “Min Profil”-button, you could also get chatting by pressing “Börja Chatta” or if you have a great idea for a topic to chat about, press “Föreslå topic” in the bottom. We suggest you check out your profile before you get ready chatting!

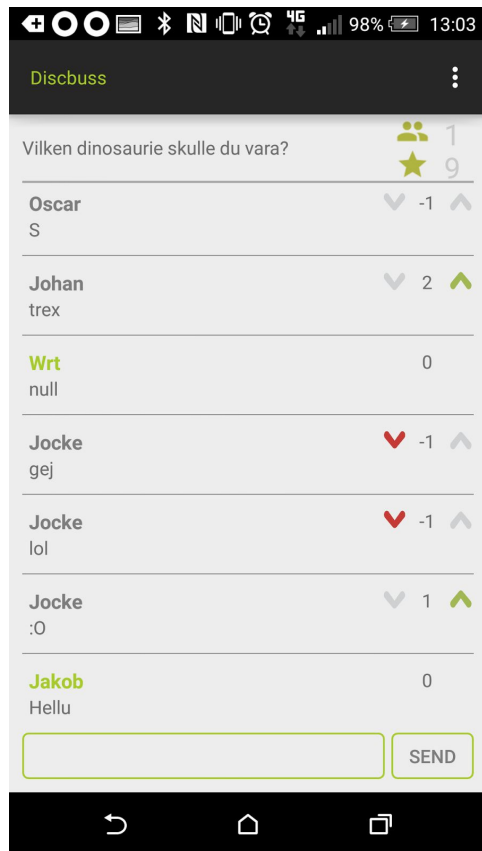

Now you should be at your profile, you probably have 0 karma right now and no top comments, that will sort itself once you are ready. First things first, maybe you registered with a name you don't want the world to see, in that case you should probably change to an online nickname, which you feel more comfortable behind. If so, change this using the "Ändra Visningsnamn"-button. You could also change your password.

Once you feel done here return to the main screen by pressing the back button.

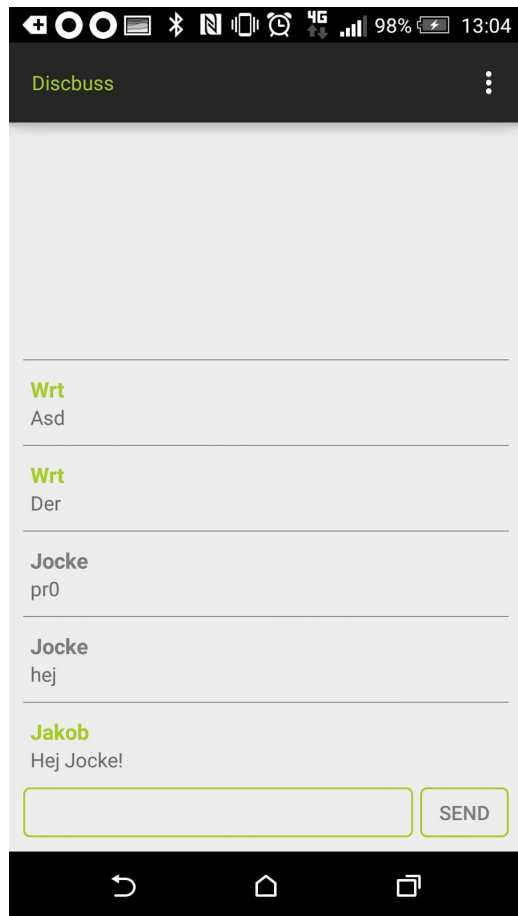

Now you are ready to get chatting! Given that you are not currently riding the 55 bus in Gothenburg, you'll be using our "test environment" (basically a fake bus), which means you can chat with anyone currently logged on and not on the 55 bus. Press the "Börja Chatta"-button and get chatting!

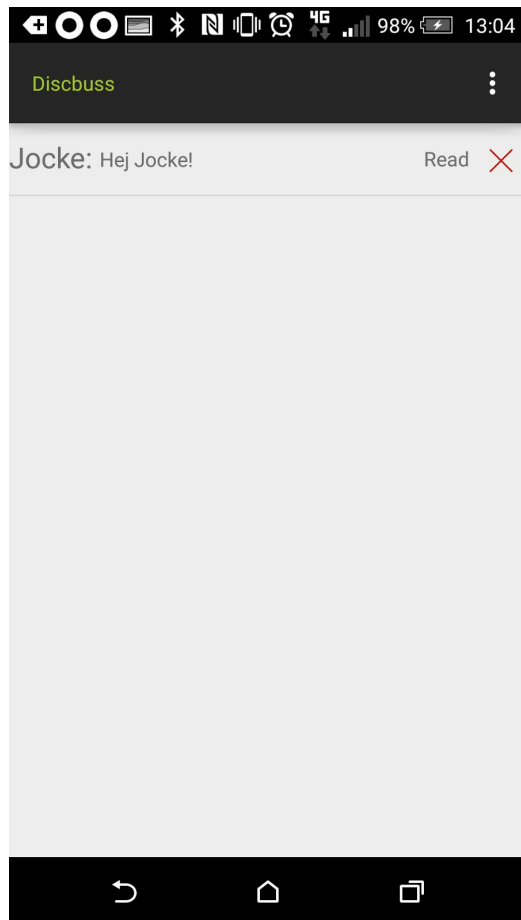

In here you can see all the spam we did during development to test the app behaviour (we are not clearing the chat, it's part of the fun). In the top-right you'll see the amount of active users in your chat and your total karma. Just to the left of that you can see the current statement running and above that you'll see the next bus stop for our simulated bus. Below all of this you'll see chat messages, their author and their total karma, try giving one an up or downvote if you feel like it. You should definitely write a message yourself as well. Instead of going back to the main menu why don't we check out somebody else's profile? Find a suitable user by pressing a message sent by them then press the "Visa profil"-button which should have displayed itself below the message.

In front of you, you have some information about the user such as: Karma, top comments, age, gender and displayname. Based on this you might decide to send a private message to the user, you had this option directly from the chat-view as well, but why bother returning there? Instead press the “Skicka Meddelande”-button.

You should now be looking at a private chat with the user you selected before, try sending a message and in the best of worlds, you'll get an answer! Now you find this chat in your "Meddelanden" which is accessible from the main menu, let's return to the main screen and press the "Meddelanden"-button just to confirm that's actually true.

Found your private chat? Beautiful. Didn't get an answer yet? Bummer. You probably don't want to keep chatting with this person then, you deserve better. Close that chat by pressing the red X on the right-end part of the screen. Alright, now that's done. Let's return to the main screen to try out one last thing.

You probably have a great idea about something you want to discuss with complete strangers using our app. You do? Great! Press the "Föreslå topic"-text in the bottom and suggest something you'd like discussing, once reviewed and approved it will be one of the statements appearing in the Chat! If you want to from here and you checked the "Automatisk inloggning" at login before you could try closing the app down and relaunching it to reassure you we were not lying before about that auto-login.
